

Week 12 Diary Entry

After some minor tweaks here and there, adding more content and images that can help further my data story, I am only left with uploading my datasets onto my js file and for it to run! However, I have been facing some small issues regarding this but have since reached out for help. Other than that, I am not facing much issues and my website development has been going well! I even created a "form" at the end to make the website even more interactive :-)